A PRIEST'S LONG RIDE.

He Traveled 160 Miles on Horseback to Visit a Dying Woman.

According to a press dispatch from Wichita, Kan., Rev. John Bagley, a pioneer Catholic priest of the West, now stationed at Kingman, Kan., made a wonderful ride

Mrs. Quinlan of New York City, whose son owns the "T-bar-T" ranch, one of the largest that at present exists in the paradise of the ranchers and "cow punchers"—No Man's Land—some time ago came to pay her son a visit. She was suddenly taken ill. and more through medical neglect, no physician could be found nearer than Liberal. Kan., or Paladura, Texas, her condition be-came critical. Her life was despaired of, and when she was informed that it was not thought she could live, she expressed a de-sire that a priest be sent for to attend ber in her last moments. This was a very difficult wish to fulfill, but owing to difficult wish to fulfill, but owing to Father Eagley's daring and wonderful ride, the sick woman received the consolation of religion before departing from this life. The ranchmen throughout Beaver county. Oktahoma, which is another name for the strip of land known as "No Man's Land," entered into the spirit of the ride and gave the priest all the assistance that was within their power. Relays of horses, those famous Colorado animals that have been known to travel until they fall down from sheer exhaustion, were arranged for him, and, as a haustion, were arranged for him, and, as a result, he rode the entire distance of 160 miles over the prairie in twenty-one boars and thirty minutes, reaching the dying woman just before she became unconscious. Part of the journey from Kingman, which was in all 310 miles away, was by rail. The train took the priest to Englewood, and from there he began his ride on horseback. He are nothing during the horseback trip and took only one drink of water.

In the entire ride the priest passed but two or three houses and they were sod shaahaustion, were arranged for him, and, as a two or three houses and they were sod shanties at that. In the whole distance the companions of the traveler were cattle and wild annuals. Gray welves are not at all scarce, and the constant and welrd howlings of the coyotes is quite sufficient to turn the ordi-nary traveler back to his home and safe The ranch to which the priest went was in the extreme western performed Beaver county, near the Colorado live, and for thirty miles he was compiled to travel through the long sand bills which overhang the banks of Paladura creek. No water can be procured in that stretch for man or benst. To show how wild the regions through which he passed are, it may be said that the United States government sends mail through only twice every three weeks, and then the packages are well generical by two or three men. Not that there are any or three men. Not that there are any ladians running around loose, but in the valleys toward the end of the fourney, especially in the Paladura valley, every little rainsform that comes up is attended by a "Jimmieclone," which in the language of the East, is a small-sized cyclone.

The tanchmen in the violaity and all of the planeers say that Father Rugley's ride is the most wonderful they ever heard of, and he is the hero of the hour in Kansas.

IN THE DEPARTMENT STORE.

How the Charming Bayer Got to the Windward of the Merchant.

"What won't merchants nowedays do in order to gain a business advantage," asked drammer from Ohio, according to the Buffalo Express, who then partially answered falo Express, who then partially answered his own question by saying: "I went into a big department more last week. I found that the buyer for my line of goods was a woman, a mighty hardsome woman. I made an appointment for her the next morning, and when I arrived with my samples found half a dozen salesmen ahead of me and had to waiting turn.

"The buyer was busy just then with a fellow who solt cheap jewelry. He was a susceptible youth, and the girl was stringing him for all he was worth. You'd have ing him for all fe was worth. You dhave sworn she was shad in love with him. She called him by his first name, leaned her head confaingly against him as they looked over the samples, and insisted on pinning the goods into his scarf and shirt front to see how they would look. As a result she bought all she wanted for a song. That young fellow's employers are probably young fellow's employers are probably wondering yet how he came to sell so cheap. "Some male buyers are just as unsern-pulous, though," continued the drummer from Ohio, "though not always on their employer's side. I went into a store in Providence, R. I. The buyer shivered and remarked that it was a very cold day and that he didn't have any coal at home. I excused myself, obtained his address and sent him the coal of the coal that for the coal that its firm the coal of the coal that its firm that the coal of the coal that its firm the coal that its firm that the coal of the coal that its firm that the coal of the coal that its firm that the coal that its firm that the coal of the coal that the coal of the coal that the coal of the coal him five tons of coal that afternoon. The next day I called around at the store and took a big order at my own figures."

Traditions of St. Columba.

On one occasion the saint blessed a knife to that it could never hurtany creature afterward. His blessing produced exactly the op-posite effect on a stake. A very poor peasant brought it at the saint's bioding. St. Co-humbta sharpened it with his own hand and then blessed it. "Keep II," he said. "It will hart neither man nor beast, only wild and the state of the said. "It will have not beast, only wild will burt neither man nor beast, only wild animals and fish. So long as you keep it you will never lack fiesh food." The peasant fastened it in the ground, and the very next day found a fine stag impaled. Not a day passed without some wild creature being thus captured. The wife was frightened. "Some one will get hurt," she said. "Then we shall be either kilked or sold as slaves." The peasant removed it and laid it by in hishouse. The next day his dog was killed by it. He put it in the river and found a marveleusly big salmon on it. The next a marvelensly big salmon on it. The next place was on the roof, where it proved fatal to a crow. Persuaded by his wife—"per sociam it Adam," says the blographer—be cut it up and burned it, and was as poor as ever all the rest of his life.—London Spec-tator.
